Attack To North Of Dam

Allies in Limited Action While Thousands Pour Into That Area

By Olen Clements

TOKYO, April 19—(AP)—Allied troops today launched a limited attack north of the newly captured Hwachon power dam and reservoir on the east-central front in North Korea.

The allies seized the big hydro-electric grid Wednesday after Reds who had defended it stubbornly for days slipped away to the north.

Thousands of allied doughboys poured into the dam and reservoir area. United Nations riflemen struck north from Hwachon at the west end of the reservoir. They traded fire with an enemy group of undisclosed strength but later withdrew.

Chinese Reds pulled back all along the central front in the mountainous areas west of the reservoir.

Rain, smoke and haze made air observation impossible. But United Nations troops patrolled aggressively far ahead of their lines in those craggy heights without opposition.

Heavy rain slowed the allied push on the western front.

Chinese mounted a daylight, company-sized counterattack 10 miles inside Red Korea north of Yonchon.

Allied artillery and a late afternoon air strike threw back the attack.

U. N. forces inched forward up the last hillcrest before Chorwon, 17 air miles north of the border. Other allied troops neared Chigyong, southeast of Chorwon and 16 air miles inside the Redland.

Improve Roads

Behind front lines, American engineers and Korean road crews were working day and night to weather proof roads against the heavy rains soon due.

There was no official explanation for the sudden Red pullback that permitted the allies to take over the Hwachon dam and reservoir.

Eight of the dam's 18 floodgates were still open. The dam is 880 feet long and 250 feet high. It backs up water for 11 miles and once was a major source of power for Seoul.

Allied troops seized Hwachon at the western end of the reservoir Wednesday without a fight. They captured Yanggu on the eastern end Monday. An eight-man Red patrol probed to the outskirts of Yanggu Wednesday night. Heavy Red mortar shells fell into the city Thursday afternoon.

Reds Mass 600,000

The slow, deliberate U. N. drive appeared to be nearing the line between Chorwon and Kumhwa, 14 miles northeast. Behind it, the Reds were believed to have massed 600,000 men for an expected spring drive.

A U. S. Eighth Army communique Wednesday indicated the allies were having trouble finding the Reds at most places. It said allied patrols in central Korea were trying "to fix the position of an elusive enemy."

Red casualties Wednesday totaled 445, about half the usual daily score, indicating little action.

A South Korean force on the east coast moved 28 miles north of the Red border before it met Red opposition.

Two air alerts were sounded along the front Thursday. A blackout was enforced Wednesday-Thursday night for the first time in the war. An unidentified plane flew over the front but there was no reports of any bombing.

Allied air authorities have been on the alert for days for a possible strong Red air smash.

Allied Navy carrier planes blasted Hamhung on the east coast Wednesday. A Navy announcement said the port is "useless to the enemy.

The planes dropped 170,000 pounds of high explosives on the town and poured more than 12,000 rounds of machinegun fire into enemy barracks and billets.

Allied warships shelled Songjin, north of Hamhung, for the 42nd straight day.

Rain Thursday extinguished brush fires whose smoke had obscured Red withdrawals Wednesday.

A North Korean communique broadcast by Moscow raido said the Red air force attacked five destroyers Monday, sank one, and damaged another. It did not give the location of the purported action.

Unexpected Guests In Claim to Seats

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—About 100 unexpected guests showed up at the Capitol today and laid claim to seats on the House floor to hear Gen. Douglas MacArthur.

They were former House members who, under its rules, have a right to sit in the House at any time.

They couldn't all be given seats since the House chamber just wasn't big enough for the present members, the senators and ex-members too.

'Under Imminent Threat of War'

By Russell Brines

SENDAI, Japan, April 19—(AP)—Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgeway, United Nations commander, today told American troops, newly arrived in Japan, "we stand under the imminent threat of war."

On his first inspection trip as supreme commander, Ridgway told the 223rd regiment of California's newly arrived 40th division:

"To all intents and purposes you're here in war.

"We stand under the imminent threat of war which can be unleashed at the time and place of choosing of other people . . .

"However good you think you are, and I know you are good, you've got a long way to go to reach the standard of veteran (American) seasoned combat troops who are just across the water. I am confident you'll use every minute of the time you've got because you don't know and I don't know when the chips will be down."

The 200-mile trip from Tokyo was unprecedented. Gen. MacArthur never inspected a Japan garrison outside Tokyo.

Loses Life in A Tractor Accident

Hershell Rugen Is Killed on Road Near Syracuse

Hershell Rugen, a resident of the Mt. Carmel church neighborhood near Syracuse, was instantly killed about 11:20 a. m. today when run over by a tractor which he had been driving. The accident occured on a Morgan county road near the Kenneth Wilde farm about one half mile east of Mt. Carmel church, approximately twelve miles south of Syracuse.

According to information given Dr. C. F. Luebbert, Tipton osteopath, who was called to the scene, Mr. Rugen was killed instantly. Dr. Luebbert said a witness told him that Mr. Rugen was taking his tractor down to the creek where another tratcor was stuck. He was driving the tractor and a neighborhood friend was riding with him.

The tractor, according to the report had just gone over the crest of a hill and was starting downward when the front wheels struck a hole in the road. This caused the front wheels to jump and in bouncing the rear wheels came up and Mr. Rugen was thrown off his seat in to the path of the rear wheel on the tractor.

The wheel passed over Mr. Rugen's head crushing it.

Dr. Luebbert made an investigation at the scene for Gene Barthurm, Versailles, coroner of Morgan county who will also make an investigation this afternoon. The neighborhood friend, who was riding on the tractor, according to Dr. Luebbert said that Mr. Rugen hardly a minute before had remarked about a friend who had been killed by a tractor.

The body was removed to the Neumeyer funeral home at Smithton.

Mr. Rugen is survived by his wife and one child. Also by his parents Mr. and Mrs. Henry Rugen, Sr., of the neighborhood.

Hennings For Single Package

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—Senator Hennings (D-Mo) said today he is ready to make an active fight for having a single government appropriations bill.

He is a co-sponsor of legislation introduced by Senator Byrd (D-Va) for the single-bill plan. Forty-six other senators are co-authors.

The single-package plan was used by Congress last year without formal action by the House on Legislation to put it into effect. But this year the House Appropriations committee refused to do so, over objection of Chairman Cannon (D-Mo).

Hennings said the one-bill plan "is a major practical step toward economy in government, and should prove to be much wiser than spending great sums of money in many directions and in piecemeal fashion."

He added in a statement the plan should have been more workable this year than it was last year because "certain valid objections to it have been met."

Relative needs of various functions of the government should be sized up while there is time for adjustment, Hennings said.

He added the single-package plan gives the general picture of total appropriations and makes possible "a more intelligent approach to trimming."

House Votes Cent Boost on Gasoline Tax

Would Give The State $11,000,000 More For Roads

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 19—(AP)—The Missouri House approved a one-cent increase in the state gasoline tax Wednesday on a 100 to 26 vote.

The bill to boost the tax from two to three cents—and thus give the highway department about $11,000,000 more a year for roads—now is ready for House passage. It has not yet passed the Senate.

The vote was only three less than the 103 needed to put it into immediate effect if passed by both houses and signed by the governor.

Smith Supports Tax

Gov. Forrest Smith is a strong supporter of an increased gasoline tax. Last April voters rejected his plan for a four-cent tax.

The two-hour long argument swung around that election. The Missouri Automobile Club and the petroleum industries committee helped to sponsor the referendum vote.

They, along with the state bus and truck association, were called the real authors of three-cent tax bill today.

Rep. F. E. Robinson (D) of Knox county said a real compromise between the original four-cent proposal and the three-cent tax the big three groups suggested would be 3½ cents.

Another Democrat, Rep. Tom A. Shockley (D) of Pulaski county, said Missouri needs a four-cent tax and he wasn't afraid of the groups that brought on the referendum election.

He urged adoption of his amendment to make the tax four cents.

"I just want to see how much nerve you have," he told the members as he asked for a vote.

Webster Shrugs-Off Charges

A Republican, Rep. Richard M. Webster (R) of Jasper county, author of an amendment to set the tax at 2½ cents, shrugged off charges that the Auto Club and the petroleum people were to blame for the election defeat a year ago.

He said highway contractors and concrete companies wanted the tax increased "as badly as the others didn't want it."

But sponsors of the one-cent increase won out over all the suggested changes with the warning that a bigger hike would be referred to the people and would be defeated. They predicted no one would try to get the one-cent hike referred to a popular vote.

A Senate committee also became embroiled in an argument over state highways. It was considering a bill to increase the membership of the state highway commission from four to eight men.

It was introduced by Senators William M. Quinn (D) of Maywood and J. E. Curry (R) of Ava.

Proposal Similar To Others

The proposal is similar to measures sponsored in previous sessions by Quinn. One—to create a 10-man commission—was passed by the legislature but vetoed by Gov. Phil M. Donnelly.

All the proposals have been criticized on the grounds they would involve the highway system in politics.

McMath Flies To Missouri

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., April 19—(AP)—Gov. Sid McMath will fly to Washington tomorrow to testify in support of a U. S. Marine Corps expansion bill.

While in the capital, he also plans to attend the Arkansas state society dance Saturday night.

McMath said he would fly to Jefferson City, Mo., today to address the Missouri State Chamber of Commerce and return to Little Rock before going to Washington.

McMath — who was a Leatherneck combat officers during World War II — has been asked by Senator Douglas (D-Il), who also is an ex-Marine, to appear before the Senate armed services committee. Douglas wants congress to increase the strength of the Marines to 400,000 men, with four combat divisions and representation on the joint chiefs of staff.

Young No Longer With Company

DETROIT, April 19—(AP)—E. Merl Young, prominent figure in the Fulbright Senate committee's investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corp., is no longer Washington representative of the F. L. Jacobs Co., of Detroit.

This was confirmed today by the auto parts manufacturing company. No reason was given, but an official said the association ended April 1.

Like Young's the name of Rex Jacobs, president of the Detroit company, has figured prominently in the Senate committee's investigation of RFC loan policies. Jacobs was reported "in Florida" today by his company.

Young's wife, Loretta, whose $8,450 mink coat caused a committee hullabaloo, recently quit her job as a White House secretary.

Force Families From Homes

Damage by Flood Is Heavy Along The Mississippi

By the Associated Press

More families left their homes in the upper Mississippi valley region today as surging waters form the Mississippi river rolled out over lowlands in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

Cooler weather spread over the flood area. It was cold and snowing in parts of the Rockies and plains states.

The big river threatened heavy damage in Iowa and Illinois. Plans were being made in many river towns for evacuation of families early next week. Red Cross workers, National Guardsmen and city officials prepared for the expected overflows from the big stream.

Thirty-five families left their homes in Dubuque, Ia., as floodwaters spilled over a three-block area. A record 22.5 foot flood crest was expeteed by Monday.

Workers sandbagged the levee in east Dubuque, Ill., and residents were alerted to be ready to evacuate. At Sabula, Ia., workers sandbagged a 5,000-foot dike that protects the town of 800 population.

The highest crest in history—18.5 feet—was expected in the area of the quad cities of Illinois-Iowa about Tuesday. Officals in Davenport, Ia., estimated 300 families will have to be evacuated. Precautions were being taken in Rock Island, Moline and east Moline, Ill.

Convict Tries Escape Leap

DALLAS, April 19—(AP)—A hillbilly musician sentenced to death in the slaying of a police officer, fell four stories from the Dallas county jail in a daring escape attempt last night.

The musician, Robert Lee Johnson, suffered a split nose, a broken right elbow and a possible skull fracture. Hospital attendants said his condition was fair.

He had been confined in a padded cell on the seventh floor. Officers said he wove a rope from torn mattress ticking, kicked a heavy screen off the window at the back of the jail, and began sliding down.

Jailer Ed Morrow, on the first floor, said he received a tip that Johnson was escaping. He ran outside. Johnson caught sight of the jailer and pushed himself from the building in a wide arc for a jump.

The rope broke and he fell four floors to a service station roof.

He was the leader of a quartet of hillbilly musicians who were charged with shooting officer Johnnie Sides and his partner, H. L. Dawson last January. The officers had stopped the car for running a traffic light. Sides died of wounds. Dawson recovered.

Most of Cancer Fund Used Here

The Pettis County Cancer Crusade has a quota of $3,289 to raise this year. Sixty per cent of every dollar remains for use in this community, according to Bob Wall, county chairman. The key to cure cancer lies in early detection, and Pettis county is extremely fortunate to have one of five cancer detection clinics in the state of Missouri.

The detection clinic operated by members of the medical profession is open for the use of every citizen needing care the fourth Friday of each month. This is your project. The cancer detection clinic is for you and your family's welfare.

The 1951 Cancer Crusade of the American Cancer Society seeks funds to combat this outlaw disease. Your dollars help guard your family. Strike back! Give to conquer cancer!

Attorney General Gives Views On How to Stop Bookies

JEFFERSON CITY, April 19—(AP) — How can you stop the bookies?

Attorney General J. E. Taylor told the Missouri Senate Crime committee last night there's only one way to do it: Stop Continental Press service of Chicago.

He agreed with Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.), chairman of the U. S. Senate Crime committee, that Continental is "public enemy No. 1."

And he said it would take both federal and state laws against transmission of gambling information to get the job done. If you don't have both, he said, the bookmakers will figure out a way to get their racing information and keep operating.

Taylor has testified before both the Kefauver and the McFarland Senate committees. Now he knows, he said that Continental is "the fountainhead of the bookmaking business in Missouri as well as in other states."

He said it is such a monopoly that it controls the bookie business all over the country.

"It has brought about and financed gangsterism," he said. "It has caused bloodshed and led to

MacArthur Asserts Views Been Shared By Joint Chiefs of Staff

Cheered on Restating Policy For Blockade

Against Appeasement And Closes Military Career With the Words; 'Old Soldiers Never Die, But Just Fade Away'

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—Gen. Douglas MacArthur said today his views on the Far East "have been fully shared by practically every military leader" including the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff.

This assertion by the deposed Far Eastern commander in an address to Congress brought a storm of applause with Republican members standing and cheering. MacArthur was interrupted for nearly a minute.

He had previously restated the four points of his strategic policy for the Orient. They were, he said:

1 An economic blockade of China.

2. A naval blockade of the China coast.

3. Removal of the restrictions on aerial reconnaissance over China.

4. A removal of the restrictions on the ground forces of Nationalist China "with logistical support from us."

This last meant using the Nationalist troops of Chiang Kai Shek with the United States furnishing supplies.

Cheering halted him briefly when he came to both the second and third points.

Been Criticized

MacArthur said of his policy "For this I have been severely criticized in many quarters, principally abroad." But, he said, he had never heard any criticism of these views from "responsible military authorities, including our own joint chiefs of staff."

MacArthur said he had called for reinforcements in Korea but was informed they were not available. He said he had warned that unless permission was granted to bomb Manchurian bases, blockade the China coast and use Nationalist forces on Formosa the position of his command "forbade victory" in Korea.

Bluntly, MacArthur said the intervention of the Chinese Communists in the Korean fighting had called for "realistic adjustment of military strategy and such decisions have not been forthcoming."

MacArthur said he was not consulted in advance on the sending of American troops into Korea, but the move "proved to be a sound one."

His voice rising in vibrancy, MacArthur told Congress "We could hold in Korea by constant maneuver . . . but we could hope at best for only an indecisive campaign."

Those who would appease Red China "are blind" MacArthur said.

He declared Soviet Russia would not necessarily mesh her power with Red China if the United Nations forces carried the war further. Any new enemy, he said, will strike only if it feels the balance is in her favor on a world scale.

Hold To Formosa

He had declared earlier that Formosa must not be allowed to fall into enemy hands.

It is part of an island arc, he said, from which U. S. air and sea power can control the Pacific and maintain it as a protective "moat" for all the Americas.

MacArthur concluded with a recollection of the Old Soldier Ballad "Old soldiers never die, they just fade away."

He said he was closing out 52

Senator Arthur M. Vandenberg Dies in Sleep

Placed Affairs Of Government Above His Health

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., April 19—(AP)—Sen. Arthur M. Vandenberg, one of the United States' most respected statesmen, is dead at 67.

The Michigan Republican, a foreign policy expert whose advice and leadership were sought by the heads of both major parties, died last night in his sleep after several years of illness. He had undergone several major operations in the last two years.

Vandenberg's death at his home here meant the loss of one of the founders of the United Nations and one of Congress' foremost advocates of a bi-partisan, unified foreign policy in the cold war with Russia.

Terms Him "Patroit"

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—President Truman today mourned the death of Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich) as the passing of a patriot who always subordinated partisan advantage and personal interest to the welfare of the nation."

Vandenberg's independence, the President said in a statement, "cost him dearly in everything save honor.'

"But to him his country's welfare, the security of the nation and a just and enduring peace in a world of free men were above and beyond all other considerations," the President said.

He added that Senator Vandenberg had no fear of the personal consequences when he had to "differ from men of great power and influence within his own party."

It also undoubtedly meant a gain for the Democrats in the Senate. It falls to Michigan's Democratic governor, G. Mennen Williams, to name a successor to Vandenberg, whose distinguished career spanned 23 years in Congress.

Williams reportedly has four possibilities in mind—former U. S. Sen. Prentiss M. Brown, university of Michigan law professor John Dawson, former Michigan attorney general Stephen J. Roth, and Noel P. Fox, head of the Michigan labor relations board.

With Vandenberg's death the Democratic majority in the Senate became 49 to 46. The expected Democratic appointment will make it 50 to 46.

Invitation Given To MacArthur

JEFFERSON CITY, April 19—(AP)—The Missouri House invited both General MacArthur and Congressman O. K. Armstrong (R-Mo) today to address the Show-Me lawmakers "at their convenience."

Adding MacArthur to the resolution was a Democrat's answer to yesterday's Republican effort to get Armstrong invited.

Rep. Virgil Anderson (R) of Springfield offered the original resolution. He said Armstrong told him he would be available for a speech in the House on May 8. The Democratic majority balked on asking Armstrong, though.

They were smarting under Armstrong's reported suggestion early this week that the United States declare war on Red China.

But today, Rep. George A. Spencer (D) of Boone county offered the substitute resolution to invite MacArthur, too. Anderson agreed.

"If we're going to have a party," Spencer said, "let's have a big one."

The House adjourned for the week-end a little early today so the lawmakers could listen to MacArthur's radio speech from Washington.

The adjournment was ordered out of respect for Sen. Arthur Vandenburg (R-Mich).

Law Student Guest Speaker Of Kiwanis

Japanese Declares MacArthur Did Great Service

Seeing ourselves as others see us was an experience of Sedalia Kiwanians when they listened to a talk by Toyomasa Fuse, Japanese student at Missouri Valley College, Marshall, in Bothwell hotel Thursday noon.

Fuse is a law student and at 20 years of age has a masterful command of English and an adult sense of humor, as well as Christian philosophy of life. He intends to devote his life to world peace. He likes America, its informal customs and particularly its freedoms. In all these he made comparisons with his mother country and commented frankly about them.

Before coming to this country Fuse had often heard General MacArthur speak in Japan, but today was the first time he heard the general over the radio in the Unietd States as he addressed members of Congress in Washington. Commented Fuse:

"What MacArthur has done will be recorded forever in Japanese history. The Japanese people will never forget his glorious accomplishments and service to the Japanese people."

The speaker was introduced by Prof. W. Hobart Hill, Missouri Valley college.

J. B. Rice was program chairman.

Guests were W. O. Muller, St. Louis with Guy Bailey; George Whitney, New York with Ed McLaughlin; William Adams, St. Louis with Arthur Klang; Prof. W. B. Hert with J. B. Rice; George Miller with Harold Bamberg; Vic Eisenstein with his son David, who as a lieutenant, will soon leave for air corps service; Kiwanians E. H. Reid and R. S. Waggoner of Marshall and Kiwanian A. H. Blackmore, Spartansburg, S. C.

President T. H. Yount reminded Kiwanians to finish up their ticket sales for Kiwanis Pancake day at the First Methodist church, Fourth and Osage from 6:30 a. m. to 3 p. m. Saturday.

Witnesses Get Impatient

KANSAS CITY, April 19—(AP)—The federal grand jury's weeklong investigation of James J. Carroll is proving irritating to some of the witnesses.

The jury began its probe of Carroll's nationwide betting business Monday. Carrol, who had headquarters in St. Louis, said recently he had retired.

One of yesterday's witnesses, Philip L. Joseph, Austin, Tex., said "This has hurt me." He operates a men's clothing store.

"It was funny, he added, "that out of all the players in Texas, I was the only Texan mentioned in the original story of Carroll's troubles."

Richard B. Bradley, 72, Peoria, Ill., just elected to the board of the Town and Gown club, a Peoria civic group, said:

"It certainly was inconvenient to come here at this time. x x x I don't know what they will think of my being called here, although doctors, lawyers and college professors all bet on horses and many ask my advice on bets, too."

Anti-Trust Laws Killed Lepke's Big Business

Combined With Stool-Pigeons, They Sent The Boss of Murder, Inc., to the Chair

World's Champion Silencer lies silent in death beside the Buchalter family plot in a New York cemetery. For Lepke, the road to the chair was paved by a stool-pigeon he didn't silence.

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

Lepke Buchalter, the boss of Murder, Inc., was a quiet man with soft brown eyes. He always dressed conservatively and had a warm smile for people he met. Everybody liked him—everybody, that is, who lived to tell about it.

Buchalter made crime a big business. He had some very original ideas about crime and they paid off. He ran the rackets like a businessman. He assigned murderers like a city editor assigns reporters. He scattered witnesses like a travel agent. He was often called the "smartest crook."

But two weapons of the law tripped him up. One was a new weapon—the anti-trust laws. The other was a very old weapon—the stool-pigeon. In combination, the two sent Buchalter to the electric chair.

Lepke in Toils: When he went to jail, stool-pigeons sang.

Actually, the police often wondered why Lepke became a criminal at all. He was born in poverty, true, but so were his ten brothers and sisters. All the others became very respectable citizens. Lepke, through school, always had good marks in conduct, attendance and school work. The only explanation for his criminal career is that he simply wanted to be a gangster, as other kids aspire to be firemen or cowboys.

When he was 18, he began at the bottom. He robbed pushcarts on New York's lower East Side. Slowly, he worked his way up to stores and offices. He was arrested for robbery four times, sentenced three. But he was learning.

He confided to his pal, "Gurrah Jake" Shapiro, that he didn't think the top racketeers in New York were very smart. They killed people indiscriminately. Lepke said he didn't believe in killing people, unless there was some profit in it. Then it was all right.

In 1927, "Little Augie," the kingpin racketeer of the East Side, was blasted to death in a doorway. Stool-pigeons said Lepke, Gurrah Jake and "Little Hymie" Holtz had done the job, but it couldn't be proven. Lepke took over, and put his theories to work.

One of the biggest sources of revenue for racketeers had always been labor unions. Union bosses would hire thugs to keep themselves in power, renting enough gangland muscle to keep union rebels in line. Lepke changed the system a little—he had his strong-arm squad do the job; then they stayed in the union.

The union bosses who hired them couldn't expose them; they'd be exposing themselves. Lepke's men would gradually take over, vote an increase in dues (which went to Lepke) and control elections.

Lepke used similar tactics to infiltrate businesses. His men would be hired as strikebreakers, then they'd stay. They'd become foremen or vice-president and supervise the books, Lepke got generous cuts.

Anybody who kicked got the acid-in-the-face treatment. Few kicked. Those who were brave enough to defy Lepke's acid-throwers were "hit." That was Lepke's way of saying murdered.

Investigators later said that Lepke had an iron grip on some 250 operations—unions, businesses and rackets—at one time. With his men, murder was a career and intimidation a profession.

Lepke, himself, stayed quietly in the background. There were rumors about a man who ran this wholesale murder monopoly, but his name rarely got in print. He never carried a gun himself, preferring to read or play golf. His associates called him "The Judge."

The police knew about him, though, and when Gov. Lehman appointed Tom Dewey to bust the rackets in 1935, Dewey's announced aim was to get Lepke, Gurrah Jake and their ally, Lucky Luciano.

Jake wanted to "hit" Dewey, but Lepke decided that wouldn't be smart. Instead, he began a campaign to clear New York of any possible witnesses. He preferred to spirit them out of town and supply them with funds to lay low. If the witness objected, he was "hit."

One of those who objected was a clothing trucker, Joseph Rosen. Rosen's body was found riddled with bullets in Brooklyn. That compartively insignificant murder was to cost Lepke his life.

In 1937, Dewey had accumulated enough evidence to indict Lepke on violation of the Federal anti-trust laws in connection with racketeering in the rabbit fur-dressing industry. Lepke went into hiding. For 21 months, he stayed secluded in the underworld, directing his dwindling empire from the shadows.

But he gave himself up when public clamor over the rising murder rate—including several innocent bystanders—grew. He was convicted and sentenced to 14 years in Leavenworth.

With Lepke safely in prison, the stool-pigeons came out in force. William O'Dwyer, then Brooklyn district attorney, was able to get death sentences for some of Lepke's most distinguished killers — men like Happy Maione, Buggsy Goldstein, Pittsburgh Phil Strauss and Dasher Abbandando. One of the stool-pigeons was the now-famous Abe "Kid Twist" Reles, who jumped (or fell) (or was pushed) from a Coney Island hotel room.

In 1941, O'Dwyer's prosecutor, Burton Turkus, got Lepke, Louis Capone and Mendy Weiss for first degree murder in the Rosen killing. It was the testimony of another stool-pigeon that clinched the case against Lepke. This man said he'd heard Lepke say:

"That blankety-blank Rosen is going around shooting his mouth off that he's going Downtown (which meant Dewey). He and nobody else are going down any place or do any more talking—or any talking at all."

All three were convicted. All were electrocuted. Lepke, the world's champion silencer, was silenced by a stool-pigeon.

Report Progress Against Malay Reds

KUALA LUMPUR—(AP)— M. V. del Tufo, chief of the Fedeal Government of Malaya, thinks the "tactical situation" in the British war against Communist terrorists is improving. He told a news conference there were two reasons for "encouraging progress."

1. Many British security forces which had been tied up with resettling families after areas were cleared of terrorists have been released for the job of fighting Communists because more resettlement officers have become available.

2. The fight of the security forces has been facilitated by a noticeable stiffening of public morale. This has led to an increased flow of information to the authorities which has resulted in an increased number of contacts between security forces and the terrorists.

Wily Ravens Irk Trappers

PRINCE ALBERT, Sask.—(AP)—Flocks of ravens ranging over Northern Saskatchewan are keeping fishermen and trappers on the jump. The airborne predators are robbing fish nets, eating fish left on the ice overnight by fishermen, and ruining pelts of trapped fur-bearing animals.

"They're as wily as a wolf," said one trapper. "If you are carrying a gun they keep their distance, but if not they strut around as tame as pigeons."

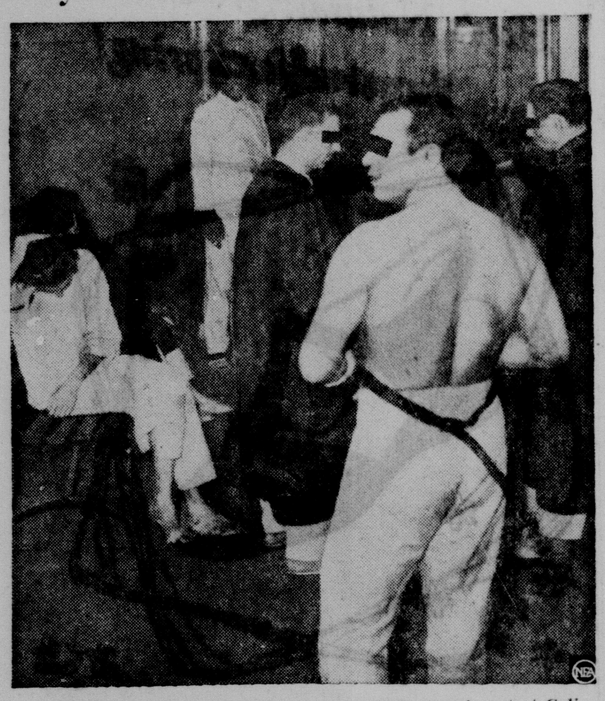
Theory Gives Hope To 'Forgotten Quarter Million' Mental Patients, Once Thot Beyond Treat ment



New Hope for Them is the aim of a bold experiment at California's Stockton state hospital. Hitherto, patients with advanced mental maladies have been neglected, except for "custodial care."

By Al Ostrow
NEA Special Correspondent

SAN FRANCISCO — (NEA)— The fate of some 250,000 Americans may be determined by the outcome of a bold experiment underway at California's Stockton State hospital.

Should the experiment succeed, the "forgotten quarter million"—or many of them—may literally be "recalled to life" as Twentieth Century Rip Van Winkles.

This mass of humanity, enough to populate a good-sized city, are the "chronic and deteriorated cases" who exist in the back wards of the nation's mental hospitals. Most of them have known no other world but the locked wards for from five to 50 years.

While psychiatrists have striven to cure or improve the other half million patients in American mental hospitals, this group has been uniformly neglected, receiving only "custodial care." The theory has been that their mental maladies are so advanced that it would be sheer waste to lavish attention and limited treatment facilities on them, when the same resources applied to milder patients would produce more immediate results.

The theory was challenged—if not rejected—by Dr. Frank F. Tallman, director of the California state hospital system, who formerly held similar ports in Ohio and Michigan.

"I don't think any case is completely hopeless," he said. "I'd like to see if we can do anything for these people besides keeping them alive in institutions."

Dr. Tallman, a white-haired enthusiast, sold his idea to the California legislature. The lawmakers voted the funds for the Stockton experiment which may reverse present mental hospital procedures.

Four hundred male patients, all previously regarded as "purely custodial cases" for whom curative treatment was impractical, are human guinea pigs in the crucial test.

Half of the group were moved from the back wards to special quarters on the hospital ranch. A staff of doctors, nurses, therapists, social workers and attendants was assigned to give them intensive, total push treatment.

The other 200 patients, the so-called "control group," were scattered about the other hospital wards, receiving only the usual level of institutional care for their type of case. This "usual level" amounts to feeding them and attending to any physical ailments, but making no determined effort to cure the mental illness which resulted in their commitment.

First six months of the experiment have already convinced Dr. Elmer F. Gallioni, director of the pilot study, that his final report may result in liberation for the "forgotten 250,000."

Among the previously neglected patients, all of whom had languished in the hospital for up to 20 years each, 56 per cent showed "marked improvement" in the half-year period.

About 20 of them displayed such remarkable recovery that they were released to the care of relatives and friends, prepared to resume normal living in "the outside world."

Of the 200 patients receiving no special attention, only 10 per cent registered any degree of improvement—about the same number of the other group who were virtually cured.

Significance of the experiment, both in human terms and dollar signs is summed up by the case of Patient G.

Patient G became deranged two decades ago. He was committed to a state hospital, and stayed in the Stockton institution until the total push treatment experiment suddenly lifted him from the shelf of wasted lives. Now he is going back to catch up with the world where jet propulsion, atomic energy and television were only fantastic dreams when he first became an innocent victim of mental illness.

It cost the taxpayers of California an estimated $20,000 to provide custodial care for Patient G during the 20 years of his neglected illness.

Would it have been cheaper in the long run, and also more humane, to provide total push treatment aimed at obtaining the earliest possible cure when he was first admitted to the institution?

Such treatment is admittedly far more expensive for the short haul than merely attempting to keep the patient alive.

When the final results of the Stockton experiment are tallied, Dr. Tallman and Dr. Gallioni hope to have a conclusive answer.

Vandalia Postman Comes Out For Eisenhower As President

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 19—(AP)—Lincoln Kilby, the touring Vandalia postman, came out last night for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for President.

Kilby investigated socialism in England for two months recently. He said tonight the trip convinced him capitalism is the only way to preserve human freedom.

Then, in a speech prepared for the annual state Chamber of Commerce meeting, he added:

"We still need the two party system of government. But it is time we forgot party labels, with all that believe in thrift, economy and a government dependent upon the people in one party and all those that believe in 'spend and spend and spend and tax and tax and tax, waste, bungle, socialism and depend on the government' in the other

Eisenhower Well-Qualified

"Or get General Ike Eisenhower, a man that has all the qualifications, confidence and respect of all the people, to head any ticket we can get him to run on and all get in and support him."

Reporting on his trip to England, Kilby said:

"The morals of their government seem to be higher than ours. At least I didn't hear anything about fur coats, deep freezes and the like changing hands in No. 10 Downing Street while I was there. I am of the opinion that low morals have brought about the downfall of more nations than have bullets."

Kilby said parts of Great Britain's welfare program seem good—for them—but not for us. And he saw no excuse at all for nationalization of industry.

"I have seen and heard enough about nationalization that I hope we will never have government managing business in any manner, shape or form," he said.

"I found many people that were in sympathy with their social welfare program and felt that much good has come of it along with the bad, but I found very few that favored nationalization of industry. It almost seemed the first is being used as a bribe to accomplish the second."

He said America's freedoms must be preserved—"if we lose freedom of the press we are sunk."

This is his philosophy:

"I am convinced that there is only one form of government that is correct. That one is the capitalist form of government or a democracy. It is the inherent desire and God-given right of man to be free. If he is free then he is a capitalist."

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 19—(AP)—Lincoln Kilby, the touring postman, backed off last night from an outright endorsement of General Dwight D. Eisenhower for president.

A speech prepared for a Chamber of Commerce dinner contained a flat endorsement for "Ike" as a candidate of either party. But Kilby omitted that part when he delivered the speech.

Dope Smuggled To US Aboard 'Mighty Mo'

LOS ANGELES, April 19—(AP)—Narcotics worth $25,000 were smuggled from Japan aboard the battleship Missouri, which arrived here Thursday.

A crewman, Francis Pastoria, 20, Breckenridge, Pa., was arraigned here on dope smuggling charges. He was arrested Saturday just before the Missouri sailed for Norfolk, Va.

Asst. U. S. Atty. Richard Hayden said Pastoria tried to peddle the morphine to a taxi driver, who turned him over to a federal agent.

The Missouri radioed Tuesday that a quantity of morphine was found on the ship after it left here and that several other sailors are under suspicion.

MacArthur Stimulates St. Louis TV Rentals

ST. LOUIS, April 19 — (AP) — Television rental firms report tripled business from St. Louisans eager to view General Douglas MacArthur's scheduled appearances in New York and Washington.

Rental firms were turning away customers today, and service companies reported a sharp rise in repair calls.

High schools, television retailers, department stores—and even a downtown bank—made special plans for the telecasts tomorrow and Friday.

One television dealer, mindful of the record crowds that watched the Kefauver crime hearings, observed:

"This is a controversial issue. I don't mind the people, but I hope they don't start arguments in the store."

Butcher Chooses Discretion Over Valor

REDONDO BEACH, Calif.—(AP)—There were no questions asked when butcher Jack Watson was cutting up some roasts in his shop and a great dane "of about shetland pony size" came in, selected the biggest one, and stalked out with the choice cut in its mouth.

Watson watched the dog disappear down the street. He said he didn't do anything because of it's "unusual size."

Glamor Follows Girls Into Service

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP)—Join the Air Force, lady and learn about poise, confidence and personal appearance. Experts will teach you.

Classes in personal appearance have been added to the training schedules for Women of the Air Force — WAF's — at sprawling Lackland Air Force base here.

"Women, especially those in uniform, can be just as dainty, feminine and carefully groomed as ever," explained Robert L. Detchemendy, head of the personal appearance department at Stephens College, Columbia, Mo. Detchemendy spent a week at Lackland lecturing, demonstrating and organizing the courses.

Individual styling of hair and skin grooming are part of the courses. Cleanliness, wholesomeness and neatness are stressed. Posture and etiquette are treated extensively. Points are given on diet, as an aid to naturally attractive complexion and to sports and exercise as aids to maintaining a trim figure.

American Heads Ethiopian State Bank

ADDIS ABABA—(AP)— For the second time since Ethiopia established her new currency in 1945, an American's name is appearing on all paper notes circulating in the country.

The name is that of Jack Bennett, (Washington, D. C.), former U. S. Treasury official and later financial adviser on the staff of General Lucius D. Clay in the American Zone of Germany.

Crisp new paper bills just put into circulation now bear his signature. Bennett is Governor of the State Bank of Ethiopia. This is the bank of issue of all Ethiopian legal tender. The first American's name to appear on Ethiopian paper money was that of George Blowers, former head of the Bank of Monrovia (Liberia) and governor of the State Bank of Ethiopia until 1948.

Allof Ethiopia's paper money is printed by the Security Bank Note Company of Philadelphia. The metal coins also are minted in the United States.

Thousands of folks suffering from such conditions have found a real and lasting answer to their problems with today's great HADACOL.

Mrs. Fannie E. Rowe, Route 2, Hot Springs, Arkansas, writes: "I found no relief, until I heard HADACOL advertised. I decided to give it a trial. And after taking only two small bottles, I felt so much better and was so greatly relieved from aches and pains. I was able to go about and do my own housework. I could not digest my food either. I suffered from indigestion and gas after each meal. And after taking HADACOL only about three days my food began to digest wonderfully. I suffered no more gas pains. Now I can say thanks to HADACOL. I am 70 years old and strong and healthy and able to work every day, all day."

Fighting Matt Ridgway:

Rugged Airborne General Finds Himself With MacArthur's 4 Hats After 4 Months in Korea

By NEA Service

In the austere marble corridors of Tokyo's Dai Ichi building, Lt. Gen. Matthew Bunker Ridgway will have little need for the live hand grenade strapped to his shoulder that became his trademark as a fighting general in Korea.

Ridgway, a rugged and restless man of 56, finds himself wearing four command hats only four months after he took over the Eighth Army. He succeeds to Gen. Douglas MacArthur's jobs as Supreme Commander, Allied Powers; Commander-in-Chief, United Nations Command; Commander-in-Chief, Far East; and Commanding General, U. S. Army, Far East.

For a general who jumped with his airborne troops at Normandy, once attacked a German tank with his rifle and climbed hills in Korea to work off excess steam, the touchy diplomatic command he took over from General MacArthur might seem out of character.

But Matt Ridgway has shed his jump boots before to put his feet under a desk.

After World War II he had a taste of the United Nations as U. S. member of the UN Military Staff Committee and Chairman of the Inter-American Defense Board in Washington.

When he was called to Korea, he had been at the Pentagon as deputy chief of staff for administration, where his desk-pounding kept aides on a combat footing.

His boss, Omar Bradley, chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, says Ridgway is "one of those tremendously valuable Army officers who are both outstanding commanders and amazingly competent staff officers. He can plan an action and he can execute it."

In the new and controversial job, Ridgway faces a life as rugged as any of the front-line combat he has seen.

"I see no end to the military operations unless there is a political settlement," he said a few days before his sudden elevation to MacArthur's five-star role.

Like MacArthur, Ridgway was born into Army life. His father was Col. Thomas Ridgway and Matt was born at Fort Meade, Va.

Also like MacArthur, he has a flair for showmanship. Balding and handsome, he stuck to a horse when he reviewed troops until 1942, although other officers had abandoned horses for jeeps. In that year, he took command of the 82nd, and when it was converted into one of the first U. S. airborne divisions, he earned his paratrooper's silver badge by jumping at Fort Benning—learning the new art of airborne fighting with his division.

In Europe, where he jumped with his men, he kept his subordinates at a fine point of combat tenseness. A decoration was as likely to be accompanied by a dressing down as by congratulations.

He missed action in World War I and had duty in China, Nicaragua and the Phillipines between wars. He was commander in the Caribbean Command between his first post-war UN duty and his job as Deputy Chief of Staff.

Ridgway, who managed the football team in the class of 1917 at West Point, sees war as "like a football game. You can't count on a thing until the last gun is fired."

He also sees military life as something as austere as his boyhood in Fort Walla Walla, Wash., where his father was stationed.

There he used to stand on the porch of the Ridgway family quarters and shout a sentry's challenge to visitors.

Last year, until he left for Korea, he used to stand on the porch of the Ridgway quarters at Fort Meyers. With him was Matt, Jr., 21-month-old son by his third wife, standing stiff as a plebe on parade as they saluted the colors at sundown.

MAC AND MATT: As Eighth Army commander, Lt. Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway (left) took a back seat when he went riding in Korea with Gen. Douglas MacArthur, the man he has succeeded.

years of mil[illegible] service with that ballad in mind.

"I now clos[illegible] military career and just fade away," he said dramatically. "An old soldier who tried to do his duty as God gave him the light to see that duty."

MacArthur finished speaking at 1:10 p. m. His address lasted 36 minutes.

MacArthur's appearance before the lawmakers was televised over all major networks to an audience of uncounted millions. Millions more heard his voice over radio.

But the White House said in advance that President Truman would not turn on the TV set in his office and that no one from the White House was going to the Capitol to hear MacArthur.

At the hour of the speech, the President was conferring in his office with Secretary of State Acheson. It is routine for them to meet at 12:30 p. m. (EST) on Thursdays.

Mr. Truman has held himself personally aloof from all the ceremonies here for the general.

The President sent his army aide, Maj. Gen. Harry H Vaughan, to represent him at an airport welcome to the general, and he gave authority for federal workers to leave their jobs and watch a MacArthur parade and welcoming ceremony this afternoon. He also cancelled a speech he had scheduled for this afternoon to the American Society of Newspaper Editors, explaining he did not wish to detract from "General MacArthur's day."

The route chosen for the parade did not take it past Blair House, President Truman's temporary residence.

Acheson left Mr. Truman's office shortly before 1 o'clock and the President then crossed the street to Blair House for lunch. MacArthur still was speaking at the time.

MacArthur argued that there can be no "appeasement" of communism in Asia "without simultaneously undermining our efforts to halt it in Europe."

President Truman and other administration spokesmen have repeatedly said the United States would not engage in appeasement. Some U. S. Allies—notably Britain—have suggested steps which MacArthur obviously regarded as appeasement, including turning over Formosa to China, now in Communist hands.

Global Threat

The Communist threat is a global one, he declared, and added:

"We can't divide our efforts."

In effect, this was a direct challenge to the Truman administration's position that Europe must be the place where this country will concentrate its efforts against communism.

It was MacArthur's disagreement with this view—his contention that greater efforts must be put into the Korean war—that led President Truman to dismiss him from his Far Eastern commands eight days ago and brought the general back to this country for a dramatic appearance before Congress.

The five-star general was given a swelling, three-minute ovation when he came into the House chamber before a joint meeting of the House and Senate. He wore a field uniform and no medals.

At the outset, MacArthur said it was with a sense of deep humility and great [illegible]lm that he occupied the rostrum.

"I do not stand here as advocate for any partisan cause, for the issues are fundamental and reach quite beyond the realm of partisan consideration," he said. "They must be resolved on the highest plane of national interest if our course is to prove sound and our future protected."

He said, too, "I address you with neither rancor nor bitterness in the fading twilight of life, with but one purpose in mind: To serve my country, (Applause).

Only yesterday in San Francisco where he received a tumultous welcome on his return to this country for the first time in 14 years, MacArthur had disclaimed any political aspirations.

He told the San Franciscans he hoped his name would never be used in a political way and he did not intend to run for any political office.

Ovation as He Left

There was another great ovation, paralleling that of his entrance into the House chamber, as he departed.

The immediate reaction of the Congress members tended to run pretty much according to their previous stands on the Truman-MacArthur issue.

Senator Dirksen (R-Ill), confined himself to a single word of comment: "Terrific."

Senator Ferguson (R-Mich) said "It was one of the greatest speeches in history in the insight it showed into world affairs and into the principles of liberty."

Chairman Connally (D-Tex) of the Senate foreign relations committee called it "comprehensive and quite interesting" but let it go at that.

Senator O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) said he felt the joint chiefs of staff must answer MacArthur and say why the general's recommendations were not followed.

Senator Taft (R-Ohio) said: "The speech was a dramatic presentation of the argument and logic against the idea of appeasement and a stalemate war in Korea. Personally, I have long approved of General MacArthur's program as he stated it in this speech."

House Leader McCormack (D-Mass) said "the one serious thought that we all must have in mind is that a commitment to war in China would be dangerous."

There was no immediate comment from either the joint chiefs of staff, or Secretary of Defense Marshall, on MacArthur's contention that from "the military standpoint" his views as shared by practically every military leader concerned with the Korean campaign.

Greeted By 12,000

MacArthur came to Washington to a tumultous welcome from a crowd officially estimated at 12,000 persons. Many times that number were certain to line Pennsylvania avenue for a parade through downtown Washington from the Capitol after MacArthur's speech. A ceremony was scheduled on the Washington Monument grounds.

The five-star general came home to Washington — where he once was President Hoover's chief of staff and led the troops which drove out bonus marchers—to be welcomed by top military men.

General Harry Vaughan, who accompanied Mr. Truman on the latter's trip to Wake Island last fall to confer with MacArthur, crackled out a crisp salute.

"I'm glad to see you, Harry," MacArthur said with a slow smile.

"Glad to see you sir," Vaughan replied with a Missouri grin. Later, as MacArthur and his party got in their cars, Vaughan said with a half-sigh: "Well, that was simple."

Some citizens had written President Truman protesting against Vaughan's representing the White House.

The President's absence at the airport and today's ceremonies at the Capitol was expected. He also cancelled a speech before the editors' meeting so he would not compete with MacArthur.

There seemed to be a smiling determination on Mr. Truman's part to be pleasant about the whole matter of his firing of MacArthur—so long as the general was in town.

Not Asked for Speech

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—The State Department said today it has made no request to Gen. Douglas MacArthur for advance look at his speech to Congress.

Technically, MacArthur comes under a presidential directive that military officers and government officials must clear with the State Department public statements bearing on foreign policy.

But Reginald P. Mitchell, clearance officer, said MacArthur had not submitted the speech and the department had not asked that he submit it.

Not Enter Politics

SAN FRANCISCO, April 19 —(AP)—General Douglas MacArthur climaxed a roaring welcome home Wednesday by declaring he does not intend to enter politics or seek any political office.

The deposed general—center of a bitter political dispute—made his dramatic announcement during a warm and riotous greeting from at least 300,000 people who jammed downtown San Francisco.

Almost casually, MacArthur ended a brief speech by saying:

"I have just been asked if I intended to enter politics. My reply was no.

"I have no political aspirations whatsoever. I do not intend to run for any political office and I hope that my name will never be used in a political way.

Phrase Contains Philosophy

"The only politics I have is contained in a simple phase known well by all of you—God Bless America."

This was the first personal statement by MacArthur since his ouster that could be interpreted as a direct denial that he was motivated by politics in his dispute with President Truman.

Prior to this, his public statements have been limited to formal acknowledgments of welcoming parties and to non-political topics.

But even if the general does not intend to enter politics he already has become the central figure of a historic political fight over Asian policy. And he will carry his views on this issue before Congress tomorrow.

The general, his wife, Jean, and son, Arthur, took off from the airport here at 1:24 p. m. PST (3:24 p. m. CST) for a non-stop flight to Washington where they will be greeted by the nation's top-ranking military leaders.

Landing Time—1 a. m.

Their big Constellation transport, the Bataan, is due to arrive at the capital about 1 a. m. EST tomorrow.

MacArthur left behind him a city which had almost exhausted itself with an emotional outburst that began with his arrival last night, and included a two-hour parade through jam-packed streets.

The general told a huge crowd at the civic center: "I can't tell you what it means to be home, how I longed for it, dreamed of it through the dreary years aboard. . . ."

After his brief speech, police opened a lane through the crowd to permit the MacArthurs and the welcoming committee to return to their automobiles.

Then the group was driven quickly to the airport where about 1,500 persons had gathered to give the general a final sendoff. MacArthur inspected the honor guard, received another 17-gun salute and bid his friends goodbye before entering the plane.

General Appears Fresh

He looked fresh even after the strain of the riotous greeting that exploded into the biggest hero's welcome this old city has ever seen.

The Bataan lifted from the runway into clear skies and turned its nose toward Washington and MacArthur's big day in defense of the policies which caused Mr. Truman to fire him.

MacArthur has openly advocated bombing China and Manchuria and using Chinese Nationalist troops against the Red China mainland in direct opposition to his President's views.

Public Housing Law in State Is Upheld

Supreme Court Ruling is Handed Down Today

JEFFERSON CITY, April 19—(AP)—Missouri's public housing law is constitutional, the state supreme court ruled today.

The opinion put the court's stamp of approval on housing developments being sponsored by both St. Louis and Kansas City housing authorities.

It said their contracts with the two cities and with the Federal Lending agency, the Public Housing administration, are legal and binding.

That's what the framers of the 1945 constitution intended, the court said in an unanimous opinion by Judge Roscoe P. Conkling.

The case arose when the city of St. Louis challenged the validity of a "cooperation agreement" with the St. Louis housing authority. It is one of the steps in setting up a proposed federal loan of $69,000,000 to build 5,800 units of low-rent housing.

Kansas City housing authority intervened because it is planning a similar slum clearance and low rent project.

The supreme court said it is clearly within the powers of the government units to enter into contracts with each other or with the federal government.

"We think there can be no possible question on the constitutionality of the law permitting such arrangements," the court said.

It cited new sections of the 1945 constitution granting power to deal with slum clearance and housing problems, then added:

"Clearly the instant situation is one which was contemplated by the framers of the constitution. That organic law confers powers under which plaintiff (St. Louis housing authority) and defendant (St. Louis City) may act cooperatively to alleviate conditions in and to rehabilitate blighted areas.

Suit Asks For $15,000 Damages

A suit seeking $15,000 damages has been filed in the Pettis county circuit court by Clarence M. Newton, minor, through his next friend Clarence E. Newton against the Des Moines Springfield and Southern Stage Lines. The action is a result of an accident on August 12, 1949.

The petition states the boy was a pasesnger in an automobile driven by Wililam Edgar Jefferies, which collided into the rear of a bus of the company on Highway 65 about six miles north of Sedalia. The petition states the bus came to a sudden stop on the highway and the car of Jefferies ran into the rear of it.

The plaintiff seeks $15,000 for injuries received as a result of the accident.

Lamm, Barnett and Wolfe represent the plaintiff.

Force Families From Homes

Cots and Blankets

The National Guard at Des Moines said 300 sandbags had been setnt to Clinton, Ia. The Red Cross sent to Clinton, Ia. The Red Cross Ill., for use if the river floods that community of some 4,000.

The Mississippi crested almost three feet above flood level yesterday at La Crosse, Wis., where some 1,500 persons have been forced from their homes and another 1,000 were in homes surrounded by water. At Prairie Du Chien, Wis., a crest of about 22 feet—four feet above flood level—was expected Saturday. About 150 families already have been evacuated.

The mighty river's level was steady in most of Minnesota. No further evacuations were expected at Winona, Minn., where some 300 families have been forced from their homes by the overflows.

While it was cool over the north central region, much colder weather, with snow and strong northerly winds, spread southward over Montana and into northern Wyoming. Temperatures dropped to near zero in Montana. It was six above at Cutbank. The cool air extended over the plains states into northern Texas and eastward across the upper Mississippi valley and western Great Lakes region.

Mild weather continued in the east and southeast as well as most of Texas, the southwest and the Pacific coast states.

Threat Seen of 'Regimentation'

WASHINGTON, April 19—(AP)—General Douglas MacArthur said today that "internal subversion and corruption" and "detailed regimentation" threaten the country no less than in George Washington's day.

In a brief address before the Daughters of the American Revolution, MacArthur said:

"The complexities and confusion and the detailed regimentation over our daily lives threaten our country today no less than in Washington's day."

Asserting the nation had drifted toward this regimentation he added:

"It behooves this distinguished society to assert a dynamic leadership in checking this drift and regaining the ground which we have lost."

The approximately 4,000 delegates applauded MacArthur frequently.

He addressed them after his speech to Congress and an official welcoming ceremony.

"Of all the great societies in the country during the past century, I know of none which has fought more diligently for those ideals which bulwarked our forefathers in their efforts to succeed and preserve freedom." The general told the DAR.

The delegates stood and lustily sang the hymn "Faith of Our Fathers" as a tribute to MacArthur before he left Constitution hall to appear before the American Society of Newspaper Editors.

Missouri Wins Over Ft. Wood

COLUMBIA, Mo., April 19—(AP)—The Missouri Tigers snuffed off a ninth inning rally to defeat Fort Leonard Wood, 8-5, in a baseball game played in a drizzling rain here Wednesday.

The Soldiers loaded the bases with two out in the ninth, but pinch hitter Jerry Bradley flied out to end the game. Bradley had replaced Joe Linn, who had hit two home runs with none aboard in his two trips to the plate.

LAWRENCE, Kas., April 19—(AP)—The big bat of outfielder Walt Hicks hammered the Kansas Jayhawks to a 9-5 victory over the Nebraska Cornhuskers in a Big Seven conference baseball game Wednesday.

It was the first conference game for both teams.

Hicks clubbed two 300-feet home runs and a single in three times at bat. He batted in five runs and scored three.

The teams are scheduled to meet here again today.

Bobby Reynolds, Nebraska's All America football halfback, made his Big Seven baseball debut with 2 singles in five times at bat. He also reached first on a walk and was hit by a pitched ball.

Citation Runs Third In Comeback Attempt On Bay Meadow Track

SAN MATEO, Calif., April 19—(AP)—Citation, leading money winner of all time, raced third Wednesday in his first comeback attempt — a six furlong sprint at Bay Meadows.

It was the Calumet Farm's ace's first race since last June 24.

The time was 1:09¾, a fifth off the track record.

Big Cy was beaten by approximately a length.

Konstanty Pounded

BROOKLYN, April 19 — (AP) — Duke Snider's triple and Jackie Robinson's single drove in the tying and winning runs off relief pitcher Jim Konstanty in the ninth inning Wednesday as the Brooklyn Dodgers came from behind to nip Philadelphia 4 to 3. Willie Puddin' Head Jones belted two homers and Dick Sisler one for the Phillies.

Lopat Puzzles Boston

NEW YORK, April 19 — (AP) — New York's Eddie Lopat pitched no-hit, no-run ball for 6⅓ innings Wednesday and stopped the Red Sox with a brilliant two-hitter to pace the Yankees to a 6-1 victory, their second straight win over the Sox. In addition, Lopat belted a two-run homer in the eighth to sew up the game.

The Yanks bombed Harry Taylor for four hits and as many runs in the fifth inning, with Mickey Mantle's two-run single the big blow of the spree. Ted Williams got the first hit off Lopat, a single in the seventh inning.

Jim Hegan smashed a home run and three singles to drive in two runs. His homer in the ninth sent the game into extra innings. In the tenth, Ray Boone singled home Larry Doby from second with the winning run. Kennedy then scored on an error for the game's final run.

Think Chandler Will Resign

NEW YORK, April 19—(AP)—Happy Chandler, lame duck baseball commissioner, may resign within a week, the Associated Press has learned.

Twice rebuffed by the club owners who failed to renew his contract in December and March, Chandler is said to be preparing to run for governor of Kentucky.

If Chandler resigns, baseball would be ruled by the executive council until his successor is named. The council includes the two major league presidents — Will Harridge of the American and Ford Frick of the National —and two club presidents — Tom Yawkey of the Boston Red Sox and Warren Giles of Cincinnati.

Cambridge is Again Favored

By Ted Smits

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 19—(AP)—Hard by where Paul Revere set out to warn the countryside that the British were on the march, a great British eight-oared shell meets three American collegiate opponents today on the 176th anniversary of that eventful, revolutionary war ride.

The British crew is from Cambridge university and at 4:00 p.m. CST, this Patriot's day it rows against Harvard, Boston univertute of Technology.

Conqueror of Yale by four walloping lengths last Saturday Cambridge is favored again, which would make a clean sweep of the first international, intercollegiate rowing competition on this side of the Atlantic.

The race is at one and three-quarters miles on the Charles river and is expected to draw thousands of Bostonians. The Union Boat club of Boston, 100 years old this year, is giving a Paul Revere cup to the winner.

Harvard is taller and heavier than Cambridge but is not yet as far along in its conditioning as the superb British shell, which rows as one man, a symphony of disciplined effort.

GOING UP!—Rev. Bob Richards has flown over the bar at 15 feet, 4¾ inches. (NEA)

Kirksville Loses Meet To Graceland College

KIRKSVILLE, Mo., April 19—(AP)—Graceland College of Lamoni, Ia., won ten firsts and scored in every event in defeating Kirksville State Teachers, 88-43, in a non-conference track and field meet Wednesday.

Bill Reanaed won both the high and low hurdles in pacing the Iowa team.

PHILADELPHIA, April 19—(AP)—The Washington Senators staged a three run ninth inning rally for a 6-4 victory over Philadelphia's Athletics last night. Noren tripled home a pair and Mickey Vernon's double accounted for the other as the Senators won their second straight from the A's.

Maryland Issues Missouri Tigers A Grid Warning

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 19—(AP)—A tip to Navy, Louisiana State, Georgia, North Carolina, Missouri and Maryland's other 1951 football opponents:

Jim Tatum, Maryland's coach, is experimenting with a single wing attack in spring practice.

But he has been working in more offensive plays from the single wing that seems to be coming back into its own.

"Now, Don't get me wrong," Tatum said today. "I still believe that the split-T is far and away the best offensive in football.

"And Maryland will be using it again next season.

"But every team has to vary its attack. And the single wing may be the variation we need to really get rolling."

Tatum departed from his routine of pessimism long enough to say that he feels the Terrapin team he will field next fall will be the "best balanced we've had since I came here in 1947."

He has a plethora of veterans coming back, among them All-America guard Bobby Ward, plus a number of highly-touted players from the 1950 freshman squad.

Senator Arthur M. Vandenberg Dies in Sleep

gational church here. The place of burial has not been decided.

With the senator's death was disclosed a story of his self-sacrifice in the nation's interests.

It was only after death that Vandenberg's family disclosed that he had had a heart ailment for 25 years and that he postponed a necessary lung operation for close to a year—from the fall of 1948 to October, 1949.

He insisted, said his son, Arthur H. Vandenberg, Jr., that "his health was of far less importance than his attention to the affairs of government."

At Vandenberg's bedside when death came were the son and two daughters, Mrs. John Bailey and Mrs. Elizabeth Pfeiffer, both of Grand Rapids. The three are the senator's only immediate survivors, his wife, the former Hazel Whittaker, died in Washington in June, 1950.

Michigan's one-time isolationist who made the jump all the way to genuine internationalism was mourned by Republican and Democratic leaders alike.

Message to Senators

Last January Sen. Vandenberg sent a message to his fellow senators urging that "we strive for the greatest possible meeting of loyal minds as swiftly as possible."

"This is the way to stop a war or win it," the failing leader added.

The senator's last relapse came Feb. 26. He was gravely ill when he observed his 67th birthday March 22.

Vandenberg was born in Grand Rapids, the son of a harness maker. He had to start work at the age of nine and got a high school diploma between odd jobs. He started, but never completed, work on a law degree from the University of Michigan.

While still in his teens, he started reporting for the Grand Rapids Herald and was named managing editor at the age of 22. A few years later he became publisher of the paper, but sold his interest when he was appointed to the Senate in 1928 and elected to a full term in 1934.

In the last decade Vandenberg has been a powerful force in the Senate and was mentioned prominently for the Republican presidential nomination in 1940 and 1948.

Underwent Operations

Senator Vandenberg underwent a lung operation in the autumn of 1949, and in April of the following year had another major operation for the removal of a tumor near his spine.

After an absence from the Senate of several weeks, he paid a visit to the capitol in mid-May of 1950 and disclosed that he had undergone five operations in two months. He did not say what the other surgery involved.

"This is just a trial run," he commented of his return. Soon he was hospitalized again.

Mrs. Vandenberg died in Washington on June 10, 1950.

Vandenberg continued in ill health throughout that year. Shortly before Congress adjourned he flew to his Grand Rapids home. On election day in 1950 he was driven to the polls, but rejected a suggestion that he be given preferential treatment. Instead he waited in line until his regular turn to vote.

Senator James H. Duff (R-Pa) told the Michigan Republican convention in February of 1951 that Vandenberg's extended illness was one of the nation's "greatest losses." He called Vandenberg "the great protagonist of a bipartitsan foreign policy."

The condition of his health caused Vandenberg to resign as a member of the joint Congressional Atomic Energy committee.

The senator had hoped to be on hand when Congress convened in January of 1951, but was unable to make it. Friends said he planned a limited participation in the Senate's consideration of the troops-to-Europe issue. He had not made clear his position on that issue.

Administration officials obviously hoped he would side with them. Senator Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) told the Senate he did not believe Vandenberg ever recognized the sending of a large land army to Europe as an American obligation under the North Atlantic treaty.

Attorney General Gives Views on How to Stop Bookies

the corruption of public officials."

Taylor told how he and former Gov. Phil M. Donnelly started action to take telephone service away from news services in St Louis and Kansas City that send racing information to bookies. After three years of lawsuits, the effort finally succeeded.

The attorney general, second witness before the committee, gave many suggestions on tightening up Missouri criminal laws—one of the main things the committee is investigating.

Would Give Seizure Right

Here are some of his recommendations:

Strengthen the highway patrol by giving patrolmen the right to serve legal papers and the power of search and seizure.

(A Sedalia circuit judge threw out gambling devices as evidence yesterday because the patrol did not have seizure power.)

Give prosecutors the right to padlock and enjoin gambling places.

Make possession and storage of gambling devices a crime. Taylor said he knows where a lot of them are stored but is powerless to act.

Make all the gambling devices developed since 1901 illegal and contraband, subject to destruction.

Slot machines were added in 1901. Since then, Taylor said, things like punch boards, crap tables, tip boards, baseball and weather tickets have come into common use and should be added to the law.

Make it a crime to bribe athletes in any sport—as a pending house bill would do. Baseball is the only sport covered in present laws. If a basketball "fix" happened in Missouri, nothing could be done about it.

Require a grand jury in each county once a year and give it power to hire a stenographer.

Make extortion of money by any means a criminal offense.

Taylor said he did not seek more power for his office. But he noted that attorney generals in most other states have the right to supervise law enforcement and take over local prosecution when necessary.

He can act now only at the direction of the governor.

If his power is broadened, he said, he should be given a staff of trained investigators or be allowed to use the highway patrol in such work.

The committee's first witness was John M. Holmes, secretary of the Missouri judicial conference. He told how criminal cases have increased in St. Louis and Jackson county courts.

The committee's next hearings will be next Tuesday night when James M. Griffin, St. Louis circuit attorney, will testify.

Newsome Hits it Rich in Oil

ST. LOUIS, April 19—(AP)—Gil Newsome, St. Louis disc jockey, has struck it rich in Colorado oil wells—to the tune of about $300 a day.

The 34-year-old entertainer said he has rejected an oil company's offer of nearly $2000,000 for his interests.

Newsome has hit three gushers in Brush, Colo., 82 miles northeast of Denver. Each well is producing an average of 200 barrels a day, he reported.

The disc jockey invested in the oil venture on the advice of bandleader Orrin Tucker. Newsome, a civilian pilot, is a good friend of the bandleader, who has been a frequent passenger in Newsome's plane.

Tucker heard about the oil deal through a free-spending Dallas oil operator who was impressed when the bandleader played gratis at a party the operator gave, Newsome explained.

The disc jockey said the venture wasn't a wildcat deal, as there are 15 established oil basins in that part of Colorado.

"But, of course, it was risky," he admitted.

Newsome said he invested $18,150, and now "I have to pinch myself to be sure I'm not dreaming."

Underwent An Operation

Mrs. Darrel Smith of Versailles is in St. Mary's hospital where she underwent a major operation this week. Her parents, Mayor and Mrs. J. B. Turner of Lawrence, Kas., arrived here Sunday and were accompanied home by their grandson, Bryan Smith, who will spend some time with them while his mother is convalescing.

Adventurous Life to Arthur MacArthur

By Hal Boyle

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mac is back.

And at his side, sharing the tremendous ovation accorded general of the army Douglas MacArthur, is his teen-age son, Arthur.

What is he like, this tall, dark, erect boy of 13—the son and grandson of famous American military heroes?

Born in Manila, he had been through two wars but never had seen his own homeland until this week. A half-smile lit his handsome features as he stepped down the gangway of his father's plane at San Francisco for the first time on the soil of the American continent.

What turbulent thoughts were in his young head as he rode with his father and mother to their hotel through lanes of cheers?

Already he has seen more of the dangers of war and the perils of peacetime politics than most adults ever know. He has grown up in an atmosphere of great events and great names. But he has never seen a major league baseball game, played hookey from school—or played stick scrimmage with a battered tin can in the streets.

What will he think of his homeland? He won't see it with quite the naive wonder of an ordinary 13-year-old boy. Not after what he has lived through already.

Adventure has surrounded him almost since his birth.

When he was four he was on Corregidor, and the Japanese were shelling this stronghold in Manila bay. The only birthday present his mother could find for him was a can of army post exchange peanuts. But when asked what he wanted to be when he grew up, he said, "a good soldier—like my father."

Soon after that he made his escape from "the rock" with his parents by threading through Japanese minefields in a motor torpedo boat. His Chinese nurse went with him, and they flew on to Australia, where he was given a delayed birthday present—a teddy bear.

Given Wooden Sword

On his eighth birthday he received a gift perhaps symbolic of his own future—a wooden sword.

In Japan he became even more widely known than the emperor's son. He was privately tutored at the embassy, but his father had expressed a wish this year to have him attend a school in the United States. The general wanted young Arthur to grow up a normal boy, and when he broke his arm in a skiing accident MacArthur refused to permit any pictures of him in the hospital. He didn't want the boy's head to be turned by undue attention.

Young MacArthur is fond of sports, particularly football and baseball, and in Japan liked to play them with other American children. He is a skilled pianist and sometimes entertained at parties for the youngsters at the embassy in Tokyo.

In the last year he attended his first dance and was confirmed in the Episcopal church. His parents gave him a zither on his 13th birthday last Feb. 21, and young Arthur immediately picked out a popular tune on it.

What lies ahead for him? When the parades are over, he is expected to attend a secondary school in this country. And the road would then seem to lead to West Point—and a third generation MacArthur in the American army.

The boy already has the bearing of a soldier. He carries himself like his father, and few have ever had the advantage of better training for a military career.

But I know what I'd do right now if he were my boy. I'd send him to see the circus at Madison Square Garden. That's a trip that should be among his memories too!

MAC'S AIDE TO QUIT—Maj.-Gen. Courtney Whitney, General MacArthur's old friend, closest adviser and head of his government section, has requested retirement in order to accompany the former supreme commander when he returns to the U. S.

Hardwood veneers for fine furniture and decorative panels are made from trees imported from all parts of the world.

The island of Hawaii is roughly triangular in shape.

Spurns Gold For Music

NEW YORK —(AP)— Marjorie Lawrence, American concert soprano now on tour in Australia, recently wrote to friends here that she had found a young Anzac who preferred singing with her to having a share of a gold mine.

Miss Lawrence said that James Wilson, a baritone with the National Opera Company, was in rehearsal when notified that his father-in-law, David Butterick, had struck gold at Wedderburn, Australia. Wilson was offered a share of the claim.

"If I had gone digging for gold, I wouldn't have had the chance to sing with Marjorie Lawrence," he was quoted as saying, "and I'd sooner do that than own all Australia's gold claims."

Birth rates of more than 40 per thousand people a year are rare.

MacArthur's Ouster Stirs Memories of Billy Mitchell

Outspoken Ways Cost Him His Job, Too; Also Brought Court-Martial

THIS GENERAL SAID WHAT HE THONGHT, TOO: Brig. Gen. Billy Mitchell (extreme left) during his court-martial in 1925.

By Richard Kleiner
NEA Staff Correspondent

Like Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Brig. Gen. Billy Mitchell said what he thought about the way the government was running something he felt strongly about. And, like MacArthur, it cost him his job.

But Mitchell's inability to keep quiet also brought him a court-martial and suspension from the service.

Douglas MacArthur was a member of the board that tried Mitchell.

In the 1920s, the Billy Mitchell case was a shocking event. He was one of the greatest heroes of World War I, a man who had captured public fancy. Yet he was hailed before a court martial charged with violating the 96th Article of War.

He was charged with acting "to the prejudice of good order and military discipline." His trail, subsequent sentence and suspension all resulted from his intense feelings about his country and his service which he, like MacArthur, loved.

Mitchell served with glory in the first war. He was the first airman to fly over Germany, chief of the AEF's air service, temporary commander of all the Allied air services. After the war, he was given a four-year appointment, with the rank of brigadier-general, as assistant chief of the Army Air Service.

During those four years, he continually spoke and wrote and advocated stronger air power. It was his contention that a "bombing airplane" was tactically superior to a battleship. He advocated a unified air service and tore into the Army and Navy air policies.

* * *

The Army General Staff was perteually at odds with the dynamic Mitchell. When his appointment ran out, Secretary of War John W. Weeks wrote a recommendation to President Coolidge that read, in part: "Gen. Mitchell's whole course has been so lawless, so contrary to the building up of an efficient organization, so lacking in team work, so indicative of a desire for publicity at the expense of everyone with whom he is associated, that his actions make him unfit for a high administrative position."

Coolidge let Mitchell revert to his permanent rank of colonel. He was exiled to the 8th Corps Area at San Antonio, but the obvious attempt to sidetrack and silence him failed.

When the dirigible Shenandoah was destroyed, Mitchell said the disaster was the result of "incompetence, criminal negligence and almost treasonable administration of the national defense by the War and Navy departments." That statement brought the court martial.

Mitchell, in a speech to the judges, said the trial was "the culmination of the efforts of the general staff of the Army and the general board of the Navy to depreciate the value of air power."

For seven weeks, the court martial heard evidence. They heard Mitchell described as a "self-advertising demagog" and likened to Aaron Burr. Finally, he was sentenced—the court said it was lenient because of his military record—to suspension from the service for five years and forfeiture of all pay and allowances. Coolidge upheld the sentence, although he modified it to give Mitchell half-pay.

Until his death in 1936, Mitchell kept on talking. Time has proven that he was right in his beliefs about the value of air power. But his right to talk with such fervor is still debated, as it was in the days of the court martial.

Local Newspaper Is The Best Food Market Place

Selects Democrat-Capital Again for 1951 Apple Pectin Product Campaign

KANSAS CITY, Mo. April 17—While colorful national magazine advertising and network radio or TV programs may make consumers "brand conscious" of a food product, America's housewives make most of their grocery shopping decisions through the local newspapers, according to Victor E. Speas, president of Pen-Jel Corporation. This year, as in the past, a major share of the Pen-Jel household pectin advertising budget will go into carefully selected newspapers throughout Pen-Jel's market area. The Democrat-Capital is one of the 450 selected for this 1951 Pen-Jel campaign.

"Our experience has shown us that housewives do much of their grocery shopping in the local newspaper," said Mr. Speas. "They have learned to trust it for its news and to rely on it for the best purchases. We have found that Pen-Jel newspaper advertising has appealed to her in the past — and the constantly incerasing sales of Pen-Jel thru local newspaper advertising indicated that Pen-Jel's aid in her jam and jelly making has won her approval."

Hal Boyle, famous Associated Press war correspondent and columnist, started as an office boy in the Kansas City office of The Associated Press.

MacArthur Rides Down Penn. Ave. on 2 Historic Occasions

By Drew Pearson

(Copyright, 1951, By The Bell Syndicate, Inc.)

WASHINGTON—It is symbolic that Douglas MacArthur has twice ridden up and down Pennsylvaniia avenue on historic occasions, each time under unpopular Presidents, and each time when the principle of civilian versus military government was at issue.

The first time was nearly 20 years ago under the Hoover administration, when a cautious, timid President had been so slow in handling a group of veterans lobbying for a bonus that extreme military measures were finally used to evict them. The second time is today under a President with more courage than caution, whose injudicious utterances and precipitous actions have brought his administration to the same low stage of unpopularity as Herbert Hoover's.

Significant also may be the fact that MacArthur's previous advance down Pennsylvania avenue, behind tanks and cavalry, drove a decisive nail in the Hoover political coffin and led to the Republican party's disastrous defeat.

Today, the tables are turned, and MacArthur's second ride up Pennslvania avenue may drive a nail in the Truman political coffin and lead to the Democratic party's defeat.

Press Comment Turns

The tables are turned also in another interesting manner. MacArthur, after driving out the bonus army, was unpopular in the extreme. The veterans of foreign wars, which praises him today, was bitter in its denunciation then. And the Scripps-Howard newspapers, which champion MacArthur today, felt quite differently then.

"Revolution has been threatened, General MacArthur, chief of staff of the U. S. army, announces from the White House," said the Scripps-Howard Washington News. "This is untrue. The veterans, ridden down and slashed by MacArthur's troops, were insurrectionists, according to the general. This is untrue . . . revolutions cannot be threatened by unarmed men. The bonus marchers were unarmed.

"What a pitiful spectacle is that of the great American government, mightiest in the world, chasing unarmed men, women and children with army tanks."

Changes On Penn. Ave.

There are other changes between that march nearly two decades ago and that of today. MacArthur himself, a man with a photographic eye, will doubtless be the first to notice them.

As he leaves the capitol and goes up the avenue toward the White House, he will pass along the Mall, one of the most beautiful parks in Washington—stretching from the foot of Capitol Hill to the Lincoln Memorial.

MacArthur has never seen this park before. For, during that other march down Pennsylvania avenue, it was partly a grove of trees around dilapidated houses, headquarters for the 20,000 nondescript, pathetic veterans who came to Washington during those depression days seeking relief for their families.

MacArthur will also pass by the Mellon Art Gallery, one of the most beautiful buildings in Washington, which he has not seen before. It was at this point, when he passed on his previous march down the avenue, that a Negro veteran waved a big American flag and dared MacArthur's cavalry to advance.

Two troopers brought their sabres to salute. Others stood at attention. An officer gave a command. The Negro was ridden down.

The scenes on that other march down Pennsylvania avenue were at one time awful, gruesome and amusing—booing spectators, tanks, tear gas, veterans taunting troops . . . "Where were you during the Argonne?" . . ."Hoover's Cossacks." . . . "Bring on Bismarck!"

MacArthur would have escaped any blame had it not been for two things. As chief of staff he did not have to participate in the bonus army's eviction. It was a minor police operation which should have been commaned by a colonel from Fort Meyer across the Potamic. Instead MacArthur sent for his full-dress uniform, changed in his office in the war department, and as chief of staff took personal command of the operation—to the accompaniment of newsreels and photographers.

Unfortunate Press Conference

His second mistake was to hold a press conference, which again was outside the line of duty, and during which he made unfortunate statements taking credit for the "victory."

"I have entered villages in wartime which have been in the grip of the enemy for three years," he announced, "and I know what their gratitude means. But never have I seen, even in those days such expressions of gratitude as from the crowds today."

The Washington Board of Trade, quite a conservative organization, meanwhile passed a resolution praising the Washington police for their compassionate feeding of the bonus army.

Historians, who will have a chance to view the events of the past week more dispassionately than the public comment of today, will be interested in evaluating the steps by which General MacArthur, a none-too-popular figure two decades ago, staged such a terrific popular comeback.

One reason of course, is his brilliant handling of the occupation of Japan—a management of a conquered people which history will probably say far surpassed his military achievements.

Several others should share credit for victory in the Pacific—Admiral Nimitz, Admiral Halsey, Gen. Walter Krueger and Gen. Robert Eichelberger. But no one can ever detract from the superb manner in which MacArthur stabilized Japan and transformed a suspicious, hostile people into genuine admirers of the United States. That, historians are sure to say, will be MacArthur's greatest claim to fame.

But another reason for the change in public opinion is the fact that on that other march down Pennsylvania avenue, MacArthur was the evictor, the bonus army was the evicted. Now it is the other way around. MacArthur is the evicted—evicted from his command in Tokyo.

And the American public always sides with the evicted—as it did during that march down Pennsylvania avenue in June, 1932; as it does during today's march up the avenue; and as I hope it always will.

The Doctor Answers

Today's first two questions deal with different aspects of the thyroid gland problem.

Q — I have a minus 27 metabolism and have been taking thyroid pills. In time will this bring my metabolism to normal and will I have a normal weight instead of being too heavy? I. L.

A—A consistently metabolic rate around minus 27 is below normal and thyroid extract could probably be given in a dose which would bring it closer to what it should be. However, in all likelihood the pills will have to be taken indefinitely. The thyroid extract may or may not help the weight; diet is usually more important.

Q—I have an overactive thyroid with a metabolism around plus 24 and plus 18. I have taken four drops of iodine a day for the past eight years. Will that do any harm? My complaints are fatigue, dizziness, tenseness and excitability. H. M.

A—Few doctors would advise just this kind of treatment for an overactive thyroid, assuming that it is really a toxic goiter. If you have a true toxic condition of the thyroid, an operation or one of the newer antithyroid drugs would be more likely to bring permanent relief.

Q—I have read about eye banks bone banks, blood banks, etc. Would it be possible similarly to transplant the scalp of a deceased person to the head of a live person who is totally bald? A.V.F.

A—This is an intriguing idea, but I have never heard of its being tried.

Q—I have heard it said that there is always one in a set of twins who will never be able to have children. Is this true, or an "old wives tale"? J.M.S.

A—It is not true.

Q—What would blood in the bowel waste indicate? It has happened to me twice. W.R.H.

A—This means bleeding somewhere along the course of the digestive tract. It calls for a visit to the doctor so that the source and location can be properly identified and the appropriate treatment started without delay.

Q—Can nervousness cause heart palpitations? M.V.W.

A—Yes, but one must make sure first that the cause is not due to some disease of the heart itself.

Q—Is it possible to become pregnant after both ovaries are removed? C.L.

A—No. The human egg is formed in the ovary and consequently there will be none if both ovaries have been completely removed.

Q—I am a very young man and just lately have had some spells of falling unconscious. Could this be caused by bad tonsils and adenoids? Reader.

A—The spells are almost certainly not caused by bad tonsils. However, there are several possibilities including epilepsy and carotid sinus syncope. You should be examined and get an accurate identification of the cause as soon as possible.

KILLER'S PACE

THE STORY: In order to save Rose Bidault from the electric chair, Star Williams, her lawyer and my (Jim Marshall's) boss, did some sleight of hand. His trick was exposed and now he must prove Rose innocent or be disbarred. But right after the trial Rose was murdered and twice I had to kill men who tried to shoot me.

XVIII

STAR WILLIAMS wanted to know all the details of the attempt to shoot me out on Fountain Parkway. When I finished he said: "I'm sorry to tell you, Jim, but I'm going to have to pull you off. I just got a wire from California—a man indicted for murder there wants me to take his case." He handed me an envelope. "There's full instructions here, and expense money. Take the 10:30 plane."

I brushed it aside. "Nothing doing. You want me out of harm's way while you sweat it out. I'm staying here in River City."

He saw the look in my eyes and put the envelope back in his pocket.

"Well, at least you'll accept this. Of course Merica lifted yours." He passed a gun under the table. I held it up, saw it was a .380. It was not a big gun, but it had stopping power. I dropped it in my holster and then told him that Paul Waltz was going to get the details on the Fifth Street First National Bank case. Star remembered it.

"They were all nailed red-handed and the loot was recovered to the dime," Star said. "There wasn't anything left for attorney's fees. I don't know what McNamara got out of it—it may be that the gang is still under mighty obligation to him."

I growled. "If I thought that fat slob had sicked those thugs on me, I'd stick my fist up to my elbow in his belly!"

"I can't imagine McNamara involved in a murder. But I can imagine him lending LaGrange to a client, and I can imagine the rest of the gang desiring to avenge LaGrange's death at your hands."

OUTSIDE La Jolla Club was a nightmare in neon; inside it was about average for the midwest. To the right as you entered was a long bar with a lot of neon and glass at the back and three nearly bald bartenders.

It was my first trip inside the place. I went over to the bar and ordered bourbon.

I was just giving the order when I noticed a couple entering. It was Larry Stone and Madam Sonya Sareeta, all right, and though Stone was very pretty in a tux, it was Madam Sonya who had put on the war paint for the occasion. Her jet-black hair was up in some kind of an elaborate hair-do, and only a sinewy slim gal could have gotten away with the slinky gown she wore.

Stone escorted her to a table in a secluded alcove, and eyes popped when she let her jacket slip back over her chair. It looked as if she had put on the gown backwards.

The waiter had taken their order when a man in a tuxedo appeared from a draped doorway at the left and walked to the table. He was middle-aged, about 50, but his bushy, graying hair gave him a distinguished look. He was Al Nanabarro, the proprietor. Larry Stone rose and shook hands with a certain deference.

Lots of people treated Al Nanabarro with a certain deference. I have known few night club owners with bona fide gangster backgrounds, but I thought it probable that Nanabarro's past lived up to his reputation. Some months back there had been quite a stink about the strange death of a line girl, Frannie Martin, who had been Nanabarro's favorite. She had apparently died when she had driven his car off a bridge and into a river.

Nanabarro didn't remain long at the table. He excused himself and crossed to the bar. I observed him through the mirror. We had only a slight speaking acquaintance; I hoped he wouldn't recognize me with my back turned. His deep facial creases grew deeper, as he asked a barman:

"Louise hasn't come in yet?"

"No, Mr. Nanabarro. Shall I tell her you want to see her?"

"Never mind."

He crossed to the draped door beyond which must have been his office and vanished.

About 10, five girls walked in. Their clothes and make-up stamped them as show girls. They spoke cheerily to the barmen and vanished through a doorway at the right.

After a while all five girls came back and climbed on bar stools and went through the business of being chummy with the customers. At a quarter after 10 a sixth girl walked in. She was as obviously a line girl as the others, but she had it on them by a good 50 miles. Moreover, she walked with a certain authority. This, I decided, would be Louise, the boss's girl friend.

• • •

LOUISE came back, eyed the remaining bar stools and selected one about five stools from me. There was a vacant stool on either side of her, and I moved to the one on her left.

"Hello, Louise."

Louise gave me the fish-eye. She was trying to make up her mind if she had ever known me. The nearest barman gave me a sour stare. Louise said:

"I don't believe I ever met you before, Mac."

"No. They told me the best-looking girl here was named Louise, so I knew you had to be Louise."

"They also tell you Louise is the boss's girl?"

"Sure. By the way, he was inquiring about you a little while ago. I think he had an idea you were late or something."

Louise looked frightened. Then she put on a smile.

May Draft Call Cut to 40,000

WASHINGTON, April 19 — (AP) —The Army today cut its May draft call from 60,000 to 40,000 men.

The action follows the halving of the April call which was cut from 80,000 to 40,000. Both cuts were based on the increase of volunteer enlistments, the Army said.

Since January 64,000 men have volunteered for the Army. This is 34,000 more than the Army anticipated.

The Army said lighter than expected casualties in Korea also influenced the decision to reduce the number of men needed throughout the draft.

Your Newspaper Features Work of Two Noted Editorial Cartoonists

NEW YORK —(NEA)— Interpretations of world events by John Fischetti, brilliant young cartoonist who has joined the staff of NEA Service, will begin appearing in the Sedalia Democrat and Sedalia Capital this week.

Editorial cartoons by Fischetti will be featured along with those of Dorman H. Smith, NEA's chief editorial cartoonist. These nationally-known artists will alternate in providing readers with timely, informative portrayals of national and international news.

Fischetti is a versatile cartoonist formerly with the New York Herald-Tribune and the Chicago Sun. He has also won wide recognition as an illustrator for magazines and books, with work appearing in the Saturday Evening Post, Collier's, Esquire, Coronet, the New York Times Magazine and other periodicals.

A native of Brooklyn, Fischetti was inspired to become a cartoonist while working as a bell hop in a New York hotel. The famous newspaper artist Rollin Kirby lived there, and frequently invited Fischetti in for talks about illustrating.

He studied at Pratt Art Institute in New York, then began traveling to get a close-up look at the country that was to play a big role in his work. In San Francisco, Fischetti often suffered the pangs of hunger that are a part of every true artist's makeup. But in Los Angeles he broke into newspaper work, and later proved his versatility as an animator in Walt Disney studios.

During his three and a half years in the army, Fischetti formed his impressions of the world's plight first hand. He served as a radio operator and combat infantryman in Europe, and later as an artist-correspondent for Stars and Stripes, the army newspaper.

Tall, well-built and darkly handsome, Fischetti likes to play golf and swim when he's not at his drawing board. His wife, Karen, is a blond, blue-eyed Dane, whom he met when she was a trans-Atlantic hostess for Scandinavian Airlines. They and their year-old son live at Cos Cob, Conn.

Dorman Smith is marking his 30th year as a newspaper cartoonist, and for more than a third of that time has been drawing daily cartoons for the 800 newspapers served by NEA. His ability to combine clever wit with thought-stimulating reflections on events has established him as one of the nation's foremost cartoonists.

Last year Smith won the National Headliners' medal for "consistently outstanding editorial cartoons." In 1947, Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, presented him with the annual award for editorial cartooning.

Smith is a self-taught artist. He sold his first drawing to the old Life magazine when he was 17, but worked for a few years as a steel mill laborer in his native Steubenville, Ohio, before his art work began to pay off.

Well-traveled, Smith has done editorial cartooning for newspapers in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. He started his art career with NEA in 1921, and returned from his travels several years ago to the post of chief editorial cartoonist.

While the research and creation of an editorial cartoon would be enough to keep the average artist busy, Smith finds time to devote to his avocation — water color painting. Equally versatile in this field, he has won a number of prizes in art shows.

Hubby Should Act Differently But Let's Admit He Doesn't

Writes an irate working wife: "You wrote a column recently telling women how to keep their jobs from interfering with their marriages. It burned me up.

"If a woman is working for the sole purpose of trying to better the family's living standards, why should she have to bend over backwards to keep her husband from resenting her job?

"He ought to be proud of the job and proud of his wife for being smart enough to hold it down. He ought to beam when she brings home her pay check. And it ought not to hurt his pride a bit to share the housework on a 50-50 basis. If the wife has had a hard day at the office, why shouldn't she expect him to be sympathetic?"

Logical, But Not Practical

There's logic in the letter. Most women, reading it, can see the justice in what the writer says. But here's the catch. Most men aren't yet ready for that kind of logic. They are being educated gradually along those lines as more and more women find it necessary to combine marriage and a career.

But that kind of education is a gradual process. Most men still have some old-fashioned, time-honored notions even working wives are wise to respect.

For no matter how much a man should appreciate his wife's helping to support the family, he is more likely to resent it if she isn't careful of his masculine ego. She must be as feminine in her attitude toward him as the non-working wife is toward her husband. If she is wise she will play down her job instead of playing it up.

Successful marriages are made by women who are more interested in making a man happy and keeping his ego healthy than in demanding their rights as equal partners. Even a working wife can't afford to overlook that fact. Not at this stage of men's education in equality, anyhow.

THE CHIPS ARE DOWN
Look at these two statements:
". . . We shall still be outnumbered by the hordes of Russia and . . . Red China. But fortunately, manpower alone is not the decisive factor in modern war . . . victories are not won merely in the fighting lines, but also on the production line."
—Thomas E. Dewey—1950
"Without the miracle of American production the United Nations could not possibly have hoped to win."
—Joseph Stalin—1943
Here's how we stand.
Production is the order of the day.
Electric power underlies all production and the electric businessmen of the United States have doubled the supply of electricity and reduced the cost in the last ten years.
THE U. S. HAS FIVE TIMES THE ELECTRIC POWER OF RUSSIA AND ONE HUNDRED TIMES THE ELECTRIC POWER OF CHINA. War plants can go anytime to three shifts a day with that greater supply of Reddy Kilowatt Electric Power.
We can have another miracle of production.

Conserve Adds Zest to Meat

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

Dried fruits, fully tree-ripened, make rich and fruity conserves. These conserves have a way of making the cheaper cuts of meat taste more interesting.

Peach and Fig Conserve
(Makes about 8 small glasses)

Two cups dried peaches, 2 cups dried figs, 6 cups water (approximate), 4 cups granulated sugar, ½ cup sliced preserved orange peel, 1 cup shredded, blanched almonds.

Boil peaches 5 minutes, drain, remove skins, and cut in to pieces. Rinse figs, clip off stem ends and slice figs. Combine with peaches and water and boil 5 minutes. Add sugar and orange peel and continue to boil until of desired consistency, about 30 minutes, stirring frequently. Add almonds for last 5 minutes' cooking. Pour into hot glasses and seal with paraffin.

Tropical Honey Conserve
(Makes about 1½ pints)

One cup seedless raisins, 2 cups canned cling peach slices, 1 cup diced canned pineapple, 1 cup honey, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Rinse and drain raisins. Drain peaches and pineapple. Combine all ingredients and bring to boil. Cook slowly until of desired consistency about 45 minutes. Stir frequently while cooking.

Golden State Conserve
(Makes three 7-ounce glasses)

Two cups prunes, ½ medium-sized orange (rind included), 6 cups water, 2 cups granulated sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, ½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts or almonds.

Let prunes stand in boiling water a few minutes. Drain and cut from pits in small pieces. Cut orange into very thin slices, then into small pieces. Place in kettle with water, sugar, salt, and lemon juice. Bring to a boil and boil 10 minutes. Add prunes and boil about 20 minutes longer, or until of desired consistency, stirring continuously to prevent burning. Add nuts last 5 minutes of cooking. Pour into glasses and seal with paraffin.

Make White Shower Cake

BEAUTIFUL WHITE SHOWER CAKE will give glamor to wedding announcement party.

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

This is the open season for announcement parties. That's why this beautiful white shower cake is so timely. It is easy to make in a glass bowl that gives it its shape. The frosting is out of this world.

Shower Cake

Cake—Three-fourths cup shortening, 1½ cups sugar, 1 teaspoon almond extract, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract, 3 eggs, 3 cups sifted cake flour, 3½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 cup milk.

Icing — One-half cup cold water, 1½ cups sugar, ⅛ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon cream of tartar, 1 tablespoon light corn syrup, 2 egg whites, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract.

1. Cake: Cream shortening. Add sugar gradually, creaming until fluffy. Beat in flavorings. Add eggs one at a time, beating well after each addition. Sift together the dry ingredients; add alternately with milk to shortening mixture.

Pour batter into a well greased 2½ quart heat-resistant glass bowl. Bake in slow oven, 300 degrees F., for about 1½ hours or until cake is done.

Cool for at least 20 minutes before removing. Loosen with a spatula and invert on a plate. This gives a mound-shaped cake ready for party trimming.

2. Icing: Place all icing ingredients except vanilla in the top of a 1½ quart double boiler. Beat with rotary egg beater until ingredients are blended.

Place over boiling water in lower part of double boiler and beat constantly until icing will stand up in peaks. Remove from boiling water; add vanilla and continue beating until spreading consistency is reached.

MENU

BREAKFAST—Grapefruit on half shell, crisp bacon, cornbread, butter or fortified margarine, jam, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON —Tomato bouillon, deviled eggs, sliced tomatoes with lettuce, bread and butter sandwiches, vanilla pudding with fresh fruit sauce, tea, milk.

DINNER — Frankfurters, sauerkraut with apple, mashshed potatoes, rye bread, butter, or fortified margarine, raw carrot sticks, gingerbread coffee, milk.

Women's Clubs To Aid Defense

A visit to colorful, exotic Mexico was a highlight of the annual conference of Presidents of more than 60 Missouri Pacific Women's clubs which was held at Laredo, Texas, April 10, 11 and 12th. Mrs. Frank Hanigan, president of the Sedalia club, was in attendance at the conference and returned home Friday.

Oddly enough, the trip to Mexico was made by many on foot, as they walked across the International bridge spanning the Rio Grande river between Laredo and Nuevo Laredo.

While the trip into Mexico, which included a dinner one evening was a highlight of the three day meeting, a great deal of business was transacted at sessions held each day in the Hamilton hotel.

Each club represented at the conference reported on its activities during the past year and plans were discussed for the various clubs to formulate additional programs of civic work to be done in 1951. It is anticipated, according to Mrs. Hanigan that a good bit of the work to be done by each club during the coming year will center around defense activities.

Plans also were formulated for each club to observe with appropriate ceremonies, the railroad's centennial year, which is being celebrated this year.

Little Veal Pies Are Dainty

LITTLE VEAL PIES are a dainty but nourishing dish to set before the family.

By Gaynor Maddox
NEA Staff Writer

Now here's a dainty dish to set before the king, or any other members of a hungry family.

Little Veal Pies

One-fourth cup flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 cup cold chicken broth or bouillon, 1 cup hot chicken broth or bouillon, 1 cup cooked peas, ¾ cup sliced cooked mushrooms, 2½ cups diced cooked veal, 6 small onions.

Crust — 1½ cups sifted flour, ¼ teaspoon baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ cup shortening, 5 to 6 tablespoons ice water.

Garnish — 18 small sprigs of parsley.

1. Mix together ¼ cup flour, one teaspoon salt and one cup cold chicken broth or bouillon to form a smooth paste. Add to one cup hot chicken broth or bouillon and cook over low heat until thick and no starchy taste remains. Stir constantly.

2. Add peas, mushrooms and veal; continue cooking for about two minutes longer or until vegetables and meat are heated through.

3. Parboil onions for 10 minutes. Place one onion in each of six well greased heat-resistant glass deep pie dishes, 9½ ounce size. Fill with veal mixture.

4. Crust: Sift together 1½ cups flour, baking powder and ½ teaspoon salt. Cut in shortening until it is the size of peas. Add ice water a little at a time, mixing only enough to hold ingredients together.

5. Place dough on lightly floured board and roll to about ⅛ inch thickness. Cut six circles the size of the top of the deep pie dishes. Gash circles of dough to allow steam to escape. Place circles on top of veal filling.

6. Bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) for about 25 minutes or until crust is browned. Garnish with parsley for serving.

MENU

BREAKFAST — Orange juice ready to eat cereal, French toast, syrup or honey, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON — Codfish cakes, chili sauce, Boston brown bread, butter or fortified margarine, cole slaw, stewed rhubarb, tea, milk.

DINNER — Little veal pies, mashed potatoes, buttered green beans, enriched bread, butter or fortified margarine, raw carrot sticks, radishes and celery, chocolate bread pudding, whole milk or light cream, coffee, milk.

Cpl. June One Of Four Into Enemy Area

Ahead of Tanks Capture Four Chinese in Korea

WITH THE FIRST CAVALRY DIVISION IN KOREA—(Delayed)—Four First Cavalry division engineers, seeking a shallow route across the Pukhan river, unknowingly drove three miles into enemy territory before they were fired on by Communists.

The small reconnaissance group fired back at some Chinese, captured four of the enemy and wiggled out of the dangerous Communist pass north of Chunchon without injury.

Leading the unwary 8th Engineer Combat battalion reconnaissance party was 26-year-old First Lieut. Edwin J. Williams, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Williams, Sr., 1933 S. Gayoso street, New Orleans, La. He was accompanied by Cpls. Gaylord June, son of Mr. Green June, Versailles, Mo., Thomas Thompson, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Thompson, 14731 Syracuse street, Wyandotte, Mich., and Gilbert McDaniel, 23-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert McDaniel, Clarks, La.

Lt. Williams said his group entered Chunchon, last Chinese point of main defense in South Korea, and drove in a jeep to the northeast side of the near abandoned city. They were ahead of two tank companies spearheading UN entry of the Chinese stronghold.

No Occupation Signs

Williams said there was no sign of enemy occupation in the city, "other than a couple Chinks running across the ridges just outside the town."

By 5:30 in the afternoon of the city's invasion, Williams and his three-man reconnaissance team were several thousand yards north and slightly east of the city, still unaware that UN forces had not probed that far.

"Just before we woke up," Cpl. June said, "we saw one of our small liaison planes circling over the road. We thought it was pretty safe if he (the plane) was flying that far north of the city."

Then, said Lt. Williams, he drove his jeep up and over a hill "and the Chinks started letting us have it."

Then came a paradox in the engineers' escapade. To escape the moderate barrage of enemy fire, the group had to go farther into enemy territory, rather than south.

"The Chinks seemed to have been concentrating on our rear," Cpl. McDaniels said. "When we moved forward, no more fire. But if we tried to go south, they started firing automatic weapons."

All four of the men countered the Chinese fusilade with machinegun fire from their jeep, "but I don't think we hit any of them," Cpl. Thompson said.

In the meantime, the overhead liaison plane dropped a capsuled note, but it wasn't until later the four nearly-encircled engineers learned the note warned them of Chinese soldiers nearby.

Cpl. June said, "We heard later that while we were running up and down part of the road, our liaison plane was trying to call in air force fighters. They thought we were Chinks, I guess."

At the base of a hill outside the city, four Chinks were collared and put aboard the fleeing jeep by the four men.

"Plenty scared — damned scared," was Cpl. McDaniels personal reaction as the reconnaissance jeep probed into various off-roads looking for an escape.

"Lt. Williams found a road going off to the left," June said, "and we shagged right down it and got the hell out of there."

The racing little jeep plunged into 23 inches of swirling river water and forded the Pukhan river.

"Anybody'll tell you it's impossible for a jeep to go across that deep water — and I still don't know how we got across," Williams exclaimed.

Later, as the four men told the story to newsmen, Thompson said the Chinese were apparently "just as surprised as us. They didn't fire as much as they could have. They seemed to run more than anything."

Have Entered Duroc Registry Program

R. J. Blackman & Son, of Stover with two litters of purebred Duroc hogs, have entered the Duroc Production Registry program according to word received from B. R. Evans, secretary of the United Duroc Record Association, Peoria, Ill.

Many breeders are nominating litters this year in keeping with the demand for more production records on swine. Thus, more official production records are becoming available to aid farmers and other breeders in the selection of qualified breeding animals. Swine producers are becoming more efficient in their operations by giving more attention to official production records.

PROOF!

PROOF! Gertrude Berg, TV star of The Goldbergs, watched as a full glass of water was placed on one of 837 independent-action Beautyrest springs. She was amazed that water did not spill when near-by springs were pushed down. Reason: Beautyrest is made differently. Springs not "tied together." Result: No sags, just even, "Levelized Support."
